Introduction

Welcome to Lyon!

Lyon had a population of 506,615 in 2014 and is France's third-largest city after Paris and Marseille. Lyon is the capital of the Metropolis of Lyon and the region of Auvergne-Rhône-Alpes. The metropolitan area of Lyon had a population of 2,237,676 in 2013, the second-largest in France after Paris.

The city is known for its cuisine and gastronomy and historical and architectural landmarks and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Lyon was historically an important area for the production and weaving of silk. Lyon played a significant role in the history of cinema: it is where Auguste and Louis Lumière invented the cinematographe. It is also known for its light festival, the Fête des Lumières, which begins every 8 December and lasts for four days, earning Lyon the title of Capital of Lights. Economically, Lyon is a major centre for banking, as well as for the chemical, pharmaceutical, and biotech industries. The city contains a significant software industry with a particular focus on video games, and in recent years has fostered a growing local start-up sector.

According to the historian Dio Cassius, in 43 BC, the Roman Senate ordered Munatius Plancus and Lepidus, lieutenants of the assassinated Julius Caesar and governors of central and Transalpine Gaul, respectively, to found a settlement for a group of Roman refugees. These refugees had been expelled from Vienne (a town about 30 km [19 mi] to the south) by the Allobroges and were now encamped at the confluence of the Saône and Rhône rivers. Dio Cassius says this task was to keep the two men from joining Mark Antony and bringing their armies into the developing conflict. The Roman foundation was at Fourvière hill and was officially called Colonia Copia Felix Munatia, a name invoking prosperity and the blessing of the gods. The city became increasingly referred to as Lugdunum. Two emperors were born in this city: Claudius, whose speech is preserved in the Lyon Tablet in which he justifies the nomination of Gallic senators, and Caracalla. Nowadays, the archbishop of Lyon is still referred to as "Primat des Gaules" and the city often referred to as the "capitale des Gaules".

Burgundian refugees fleeing the destruction of Worms by the Huns in 437 were re-settled by the military commander of the west, Aëtius, at Lugdunum. This became the capital of the new Burgundian kingdom in 461. In 843, by the Treaty of Verdun, Lyon, with the country beyond the Saône, went to Lothair I. It later was made part of the Kingdom of Arles. Lyon did not come under French control until the 14th century.

Fernand Braudel remarked, "Historians of Lyon are not sufficiently aware of the bi-polarity between Paris and Lyon, which is a constant structure in French development...from the late Middle Ages to the Industrial Revolution". In the late 15th century, the fairs introduced by Italian merchants made Lyon the economic countinghouse of France. When international banking moved to Genoa, then Amsterdam, Lyon remained the banking centre of France. In the later 1400s and 1500s Lyon was an key centre of literary activity, both of French writers (Maurice Scève, Antoine Heroet, Louise Labé) and of Italians in exile (Luigi Alamanni, Giorgio Trissinio), for book publishing and of protestant activity. In 1572, Lyon was a scene of mass violence by Catholics against Protestant Huguenots in the St. Bartholomew's Day Massacres.

During the Renaissance, the city's development was driven by the silk trade, which strengthened its ties to Italy. (Italian influence on Lyon's architecture is still visible among historic buildings.) Thanks to the silk trade, the city became an important industrial town during the 19th century.

During the French Revolution, Lyon rose up against the National Convention and supported the Girondins. In 1793 the city was assaulted by the Revolutionary armies and under siege for over two months. After Lyons was defeated in October of 1793, the Convention ordered that its name be changed to "Liberated City". A decade later, Napoleon ordered the reconstruction of all the buildings demolished during this period.

During World War II, Lyon was a centre for the occupying German forces, as well as a stronghold of resistance. The traboules (secret passages) through houses enabled the local people to escape Gestapo raids. On 3 September 1944, the city was liberated by the 1st Free French Division and the Forces Françaises de l'Intérieur. The city is now home to a resistance museum.

Easiest way to arrive to Lyon & public transportation system

By plane - Lyon Saint Exupery (LYS)

If you decide to come by plane, Lyon has its own airport - Lyon Saint Exupery (LYS) - which is linked with most of the other european capitals and large cities.

Once you've landed, LYS is directly connected to the city by a tramway line, working 7/7 from 04:25 to 00:00 with a tram each 30' which transports you from the airport to the Lyon Part-dieu station (downtown).

You can reach to station directly in the airport, in the TGV station. Tickets can be bought on site or on www.rhonexpress.ft.

You can also find taxis at the exit of the Airport. The trip cost between airport and Part-Dieu train station is 55-75-.

You can download the plan below by clicking on this link!

By plane - Roissy (CDG)

If your departure point isn't linked with LYS you can choose to land on Roissy Charles De Gaulle (CDG), the biggest french airport. If you do so, CDG is directly linked with Lyon Part-Dieu by high speed train (only a two hours trip). This travel is from 75€ the round trip.

According to your landing terminal, you'll have to reach the rail station (red circle on the plan), click on the picture for a larger one.

By plane – Geneva Airport (GVA)

GVA is also directly linked with Lyon Part-dieu, for -2 hours travel (from 70€ the round trip) This airport has only one terminal, but you'll have to take a specific way when landing to access to the bus terminal. You'll have to take back your luggage, and go to the Swiss customs. Then, you'll have to rise at check-in level, then to follow the "Destination France" signs.

The rail station is at the the Check-in and Arrival levels. You can book your travel on www.voyages-sncf.com (from 40 € the round-trip, 2h travel).

You'll have to be careful, all buses/trains going to France leave from Swiss territory: make sure you have valid identity papers (Swiss visa: obtain information depending on nationality).

Public transportation System

Lyon has a pretty big and efficient public transport system. You'll find 4 metro lines (A, B, C, D), 5 tramway lines, 26 major bus lines (labelled with a C) and around 100 normal bus lines to go wherever you want in the city and close suburbs. Most of these lines work from around 5.30 AM to around 00 AM. There are also 4 night buses line called "pleine lune" ("full moon") to bring you back home. The website is clear and easy to use to find your way. You can also find the TCL App on google play or Itunes which is pretty convenient as it can display in real time all the troubles on the network. You'll find on the website an interactive plan, or many standards maps depending of your needs.

You validate your ticket in the tramways and buses and at the entrance of metro stations. Validate your ticket every time you enter a new tram, bus or metro. Don't ride without a ticket, there are many tickets inspectors, especially in big hub stations (like Bellecour and Part Dieu) and in the evening and the fine is quite expensive (more than 30ε). It will be the case at the end of the GP, so be careful! Fares tickets are available in ticketing machines at every metro and tram station or directly in the buses (but it will cost 2ε instead of 1.8ε). But be careful, you cannot buy any ticket in the tramway. You can travel on all the network (metro/tram/bus/funicular) during one hour with a standard ticket after the first validation.

1 ticket is 1,80€ (2€ in the buses)

10 tickets pack is 15,90€

2 hours ticket is 3€

24h ticket is 5,5€

Evening ticket (7pm to end of service) is 3€

You'll obtain the plan of the whole network clicking this link!

Tramway T1: Musée des Confluences

The most recent but probably the most known of Lyon museums, this big weird spaceshift looking building is a really great museum with lots of temporary expositions and a great permanent collection.

Do you want to see some living snakes, spiders or poisonous fishes? Give a try to the "Venenum" temporary exposition on all kinds of poisons and venoms.

You're in Lyon, Birthplace of cinema, you might enjoy the temporary exposition about the Lumière brothers, creators of cinema with a lots of movies and pictures about their invention.

Musée des miniatures et cinéma

60, rue Saint Jean 69005 Lyon Website - +33 4 72 00 24 77

Metro: Vieux Lyon

In the Old Lyon, you'll find this huge museum behind a really small door. Here you will see a nice collection of original props and artefacts from more than 400 movies, from the Chucky Doll to the real and animated Alien Queen from Aliens, quite impressive.

You will also be able to look at more than one hundred miniature scenes handmade by the museum creator, Dan Ohlmann

It may looks like a tourist trap at first glance, but it's a really nice museum to visit if you're into movies and geek stuffs.

Traboules in the Vieux Lyon and the Croix Rousse hill

Everywhere in the Old Lyon and Croix-Rousse Hill - Website

If you enjoy walking in the streets of an unknown city to discover hidden marvels, you've come to the right place! The "traboules" are hidden passages between buildings and a lot of them are opened to the public, you will find most of them in the Vieux Lyon and also on the Croix Rousse hill (where you can find the most beautiful, in my opinion). You can either walk and try to discover them, you might recognize a traboule thanks to a little sign near a building door, like this one:

or you can either use the link above to find them all or take a guided tour to learn some historical facts (the traboules were used a lot during WWII by the french resistance for example).

The Basilica of Fourvière and the Antique Theater

Museum : 17 rue Cléberg 69005 Lyon Website - +33 4 72 38 49 30

Basilica : 8 Place de Fourvière, 69005 Lyon

Another noticeable monument in Lyon, standing on the top of its namesake hill, you'll find the Basilica of Fourvière, its crypt and a great sightseeing spot. When the weather is great, you can see the Mont Blanc from there and even when the weather is not great, you have a wonderfull view of the whole city in front of you.

A few hundred meters below the Basilica, you'll find the Antique Theater of Fourvière and the Odeon, two old roman amphiteaters both on the UNESCO World Heritage list and the Gallo-roman museum, a museum of archeology, especially focalised on the Lyon history.

Food and drinks

Regional Specialties

Welcome to the World capital of gastronomy (just that !) Lyon is renowned for its local specialties which you can find in little restaurants called "Bouchons". Most of them can be found in the "Vieux Lyon" or in the "Rue des Marronniers". Lyon's food is pretty fat heavy, you mostly can't eat traditional food while on a diet. If you're feeling a bit daring, you can try the followings:

"Le tablier de sapeur": Parts of a belly beef breaded then fried. This is served with a "sauce gribiche" made with chive, and potatoes. It can be a starter or a main course. "La cervelle de canut": Cream cheese with salt, peppers, chive, herbs.

"Les grattons": Fried pork fat served as appetizer.

"La quenelle lyonnaise": Kind of dumpling made of flour and mashed pike, served with a "sauce nantua" made with butter and crawfish.

"La salade lyonnaise": Mixed salad with: poached egg, crust of bread, tomatoes, fried dice of bacon or chicken livers.

Our selection of restaurants

There's nothing noticeable around the venue of the tournament, and we won't advice any of the restaurants which are in a 10' range. But if you want to have your meal in this zone, you'll find a list of restaurants on this link.

You are in France, let's drink (with moderation) some wine. In Lyon, you're between the "Côtes du Rhône" and the "Beaujolais" mostly known for their red wines. You will find wines from almost everywhere in France, but if you go into a Bouchon, don't ask for a Bordeaux Wine! Wine bars are also quite easy to find if you want to taste a wider range of wines. You'll find some local beers also, but nothing really noticeable, most restaurant have basic beers (Heineken, 1664 or Leffe mostly). The most touristic neighbourhood for eating and drinking is the Old Town "Le vieux Lyon" which is the western part of the city. There you'll find most of the bouchons lyonnais and most of the pubs. The bouchons in this area are mostly "tourist traps". Even if they're good, they're very expensive.

Chez Chabert

14 Quai R. Rolland, 69005 Lyon Website - Tel: +33 4 78 42 99 65 From 25€/person Metro: Vieux Lyon The catering at Chabert's will always remain a matter of family, passion for taste and tradition, an authentic know-how, a respect of legacy, for the greatest pleasure of connoisseurs.

By far the best quality/price ratio in the "Rue Mercière", one of the most famous touristic street in Lyon.

You can have a full meal for about 30€ in the evening and 20€ at lunch.
