Welcome to Bantcelona!

Barcelona belongs to the Bant shard of Alara!

- It is White for the peaceful, welcoming city, filled with magnificent architecture and religious temples, as the Sagrada Família or Barcelona's Cathedral.
- It is Blue for its beach, the seafront full of restaurants and its busy port and airport
- It is Green because of the numerous parks around the city, as the Parc Güell, and the green grass of the Camp Nou.

Barcelona is Spain's second largest and most cosmopolitan city. It is the capital of Catalonia, a region of Spain with its own language (Catalan) and own culture and character. Famous for breaking ground art, architecture and avant-garde chefs, the city eclipses many other for its creativity and forward thinking.

Touristic Hotspots

One of the singularities of Barcelona is its architecture. During the XXth Century, the city lived an architecture hype, most represented by the works of Antoni Gaudí.

Sagrada Familia

Gaudí's unfinished masterpiece, this temple is one of the most iconic monuments in Barcelona. It's construction started in 1882 and we are still waiting!

You can see the work of other architects as Josep Maria Subirachs in some fronts of the building. This temple is full of various iconography and there is also a museum dedicated to explaining Gaudí's vision and architectural Plans.

Visiting the basilica takes approximately 1 hour and the admission fees start at 15€. Buying tickets in advance is highly advisable, as large queues tend to form in front of the entrance.

Parc Güell

This public park, designed by Gaudí, is an extraordinary mix between architecture and nature. Besides the famous dragon fountain, the park offers great views over the entire city.

You should save at least 3 hours for the visit, as it's a bit tricky to get there with public transportation, but the visit is totally worth it.

You can get there from the metro stations of Lesseps or Vallcarca L3, in the green line. The park has an entry fee of 7.5€.

Passeig de Gràcia

The wide boulevards, on both sides of the street, are bordered with shops, boutiques and restaurants. But what make the walk unique are the Art Nouveau (Modernisme) houses.

The most famous are Gaudí's Casa Batlló and Casa Milà (La Pedrera). Both are open for visiting, but large queues tend to form at the entrance. Plan your visit in advance!

Camp Nou

Easy to reach by subway, the stadium of FC Barcelona is always a nice place to visit.

A guided tour in the stadium and the entrance in the museum costs 26€. There is a gift shop where you can find all the FC Barcelona's merchandising.

Basílica Santa María del Mar

Built between 1329 and 1383, Santa María del Mar is a beautiful basilica considered the best and most complete example of Catalan Gothic architecture.

The Cathedral

This Gothic cathedral between the 13th and 15th centuries. It is close to the city center. You can visit it by Plaça Catalunya metro to Jaume I.

The admission is free, but you can pay extras (from 3 to 7€) to visit the roofs and museum inside.

As you visit the Barri Gòtic, you will also see some older ramparts from the Roman era of Barcelona, the Roman baths and the Barcelona City History Museum where you can visit the underground remains of the city.

Las Ramblas & Barri Gòtic

Another perfect place to have a nice walk. You can start the walk at Plaça Catalunya and walk down the Ramblas (If you pay attention, you'll see people dressing as statues).

While walking down, take a stop at the Mercat de la Boqueria (it will be on your right), a unique food market in the center of the city. When you get to the Liceu (there is a metro station), you should turn left and sneak into the old quarter, through street Portaferrissa or Ferran. Try to get to the Plaça del Pi (not so easy) and have a coffee there, then walk down to the Cathedral and back to the Ramblas to get down to the Maremagnum and the harbor.

WARNING! Be very careful with your belongings, as the Ramblas is known to be an area full of pickpockets.

Arc de Triomf & Parc de la Ciutadella

You can take the metro to Arc de Triomf and walk down through the arch until you get to the Park.

It is a nice place to have a walk in the morning, as the park is full of fountains and places to relax. The zoo is right next to it, but it does not worth a visit. Make sure to visit the Freak-shops around the Arc de Triomf area if you are looking for Magic products, board games or comic books!

Less known places

Parc del Laberint

This labyrinthine park is the oldest garden of Barcelona. Created by a Catalan marquis and an Italian architect in the late 18th century, this "Kaladesh" kind of park is a nice place to visit and enjoy your free time. It is located in the district of Horta and you can go there from the metro station of Mundet L3. Although it is far away from the city center it is worth visiting if you have the time. The admission fees are around 2€ and it's free on Sundays. Ideal for romantic couples!

Food and drinks

Catalonia has been noted for its delicious and refined cuisine. It is famous for its concept of "mar i montanya", combining the products of the sea and the mountains to create inventive dishes.

Traditional Spanish cooking draws on European impressions from the north, Moorish influences from the south and, thanks to early explorers, ingredients from the Americas and the Far East. Spanish food is exciting and diverse.
